The Wave of the Work is a new project made possible by the support of the Norwegian Artistic Research Programme and Oslo National Academy of the Arts.

Eva-Cecilie Richardsen has been a research fellow at Oslo National Academy of the Arts in the period October 2011 – 2015.

The research project is developed through choreographic transmissions across disciplines and discourses — searching for a more interdisciplinary vocabulary in dance and choreography. The relation between physical space and image space is approached through blurred categories of documentary and theatrical images to challenge the ontological priority of the live performance. These (image) spaces, objects, actions and events are built upon an ever-evolving series of methodological encounters named Speaking & Building. Through a range of transdisciplinary practices, materials and thought-actions, gestures of work are occurring in various scales, formats and mediums such as film, photography, installations, field-recordings, text, dance and dialogs.

Looking at choreography through the lens of visual art has been a strategy with an aim to propose a different way of approaching — another way of knowing — that is not about the work itself, but about the ramification of things.

The publications are supported by Arts Council Norway.
